As the park's designer, Eleőd wanted to create something neutral artistically and politically, he stated on official website: "This Park is about dictatorship, but as soon as this can be talked about, described and built, the park is already about democracy. After all, only democracy can provide the opportunity for us to think freely about dictatorship, or about democracy, come to that, or about anything." He recognized that these once propagandist statues should be seen as part of National history, being accepted and further critically analyzed. their regime. Democracy is the only regime which is capable of looking back to its past, with all its mistakes and wrong turns, with its head up. The wonderful thing about looking back is that you are free to do this. Democracy is the only regime that has dignity. This is what I was trying to describe in that sentence which became the key sentence of my design: "This Park is about dictatorship, but as soon as this can be talked about, described and built, the park is already about democracy. After all, only democracy can provide the opportunity for us to think freely about dictatorship, or about democracy, come to that, or about anything." These statues are a part of the history of Hungary. Dictatorships chip away at and plaster over their past in order to get rid of all memories of previous ages. Democracy is the only regime that is prepared to accept that our past with all the dead ends is still ours; we should get to know it, analyse it and think

The screenshot displays the Turnitin interface for a report by Veronique Dai. The 'Filters and Settings' panel is open on the right, showing options for excluding quotes, bibliography, and sources by size. Three yellow callout boxes provide additional information: the first lists supported quotation marks and notes that single quotes are not supported; the second lists keywords like 'reference' and 'bibliography' that are disregarded; the third explains that matches shorter than the specified length or percentage are removed. A red box highlights the 'Apply Changes' button at the bottom of the settings panel. The bottom status bar shows 'Page: 5 of 10', 'Word Count: 2291', and 'Text-only Report'.
